HUSBAND George William BUNDY-8
WIFE Ella (Elerie) C. PHILLIPS/PHILIPS-9

Yr of Birth 1870
Yr of Birth 1868

HUSBAND - George William BUNDY-8

George W. Bundy was born January 3, 1870, fourth child of Charles B. and Mary L./Louise/Eliza Sickles, in Butler, Wilmington Township, DeKalb County, Indiana. He attended school in Waterloo, Indiana. On June 27, 1895, he married Ella/Elerie/Helen Phillips of Waterloo. George and Ella had three children, the oldest of whom (a son) was stillborn. This child was followed by two more sons, in order of birth: Howard Phillips Bundy and Hugh Milton Bundy.

George Bundy was a quiet, gentle man. He had great integrity and was very fond of children. He loved his family very much and seemed to be dominated by his wife and her family.

After he was married, the family moved to Chicago where George worked for the Chicago City Railway Co. as an engineer. However, his wife was not happy so far away from her family. They then moved to Syracuse, Indiana, where George worked for the Portland Cement Co. He also worked for them in their Penn. plant. Later, he joined the organization of the Auburn Automobile Co., Auburn, Indiana. He was a member of the production department.

In 1921 George and Ella moved to Elkhart, Indiana where he became partners with four other men in the ElCar Co. All the cars were handmade. The company could not compete with Ford, G.M., etc., who used the assembly line method to build cars. The other four partners sold their share of the business, but George felt a responsibility to his employees and the company stock holders. He lost a great deal when the company finally closed its doors in 1933 and he never really worked again.

George Bundy was a very handsome man whose thick hair was very curly. He was very tall for a man of his generation.

When it was decided by his family that he was no longer competent to drive an automobile, his license was revoked. He wept, standing in the doorway of his home as his ElCar limousine was driven away. He had come to have a real love affair with the automobile and the industry that had created it.

George died May 20, 1942, of appoplexy (according to his death certificate) in Elkhart, Indiana. He was buried May 22, 1942 in the cemetery in Waterloo, Indiana.

WIFE - Ella (Elerie) C. PHILLIPS/PHILIPS-9

Ella C./Elerie/Helen Phillips was born to Cyrus Milton/Melton Phillips and Sarah Elisabeth Welch 27 September 1868. She was the sixth of nine children born to the Phillips. There is some question as to whether she was born in Salem, Indiana or Elyria, Lorain County, Ohio.

She was reared in Auburn, Indiana, where her father was an attorney, judge and civic leader.

According to her daughter-in-law, Dorothy P. Bundy, she was a moody person, much influenced by her family. Mood swings seemed the norm for her. She used her moodiness to control her husband and her sons.

All her life Ella had her way, except when the family moved to Elkhart in 1921. So she "took to her bed" for seven years after the move.

Apparently Ella didn't care for her daughter-in-law Dorothy, whom her younger son married. Over the years, however, some acceptance was achieved.

A great part of that acceptance was due to the birth of Barbara Kathryn Bundy, daughter of Hugh Milton Bundy and Dorothy Louise Palmer. Ella had no use for girl babies; however, by the time Barbara was four months old, she had completely captured her grandmother's heart.

Hugh and Dorothy spent three days or evenings a week at the elder Bundy's home. This was difficult for the younger couple, but they continued their visits until Ella's death.

The Phillips family seemed to absorb their children's spouses into their family. Appearances were important to Ella; she dressed very well and was conceited.

Ella Phillips died at the family home (1019 E. Jackson Blvd) in Elkhart April 8, 1951 of a cerebral hemorrhage. She is buried in Waterloo, Indiana.

CHILD 1 - son BUNDY-10

The first child born to George W. Bundy and his wife Ella Phillips was stillborn.

CHILD 2 - Howard Phillips BUNDY-11

Howard Phillips Bundy married Irene Elizabeth Hebel 16 Aug 1922. No children were born to the union.

Howard and Irene lived at 427 Cedar St., N.E., Grand Rapids, Michigan. He owned an advertising agency in Grand Rapids. On her death certificate, Irene was listed as owner of a Tag Sales (sales of motor vehicle tags?) business.

Irene reported Howard's death. Her death was reported by Mrs. Helen M. Nielsen of 427 Cedar St. N.E., Grand Rapids. Mrs. Nielsen was Irene's companion after Howard's death.

Neither Howard nor Irene was very old at the time of his/her death. He was 60 and she was 63. An autopsy was performed on Howard's body. His causes of death are listed as: myocardial infarction, coronary thrombosis and arteriosclerotic heart disease of many years standing. Irene's cause of death was listed as: probably coronary thrombosis. There was no autopsy on Irene's body; near the bottom of her death certificate the following words were typed in: officially examined as to cause of death.

Howard Bundy and Irene Hebel lived for 20 years (Irene's death cert.) in Grand Rapids. He served in the military during WW I (Howard's death cert.).

At the time of their marriage, both Howard and Irene were students. They were both very intelligent people, Irene being inducted into Phi Beta Kappa when she was in college. However, Irene allowed Howard to handle all their business and personal affairs; hence, Irene needed moral support and help in dealing with things after Howard's death. That's where Helen Nielsen came into the picture.

Howard and Irene applied for their marriage license 16 Aug 1922.

HUSBAND - DeWitt Hart PALMER-12

DeWitt Hart Palmer, first child of DeWitt Palmer and Sarah Marie/Maria Hart, was born in New Hartford, New York Sep. 7, 1874. An attractive man with dark hair, he wore a moustache and glasses most of his adult life. As a young man, he wanted to be a doctor, but his parents would not allow it. He loved music and had a good singing voice; indeed, he was an accomplished pianist, having taught himself to play.

He was an introspective person who was undemonstrative with everyone but his daughter Dorothy Louise. He found it difficult to make small talk and was slow and deliberate in his speech.

Dorothy, his daughter, feels he was a near-genius. According to her he "lived in an unbalanced world of absolutes." Like many brilliant people he was both egotistical and insecure. As a man in business, he could take neither criticism nor friction. Rather than submit to something he felt was not right, he'd leave a job. Consequently, he held a new position every two years or so. This job-hopping was very hard on his family; they moved often to many different sections of the U.S. and Canada. One year they might have an overabundance of money; the next they would find themselves in difficult straits.

DeWitt H. Palmer loved his family, but he seemed able to show his love only to his daughter. Apparently his wife, Kathryn Ebersole Rugg, did not understand him, even though she seemed to love him, and he, her. Sometimes he even appeared mean-spirited because he was displeased with himself for not being able to give his wife what he felt she should have.

D.H. Palmer was known by the carnation he wore in his button-hole every day that he went to his office wherever that might be.

DeWitt H. Palmer married Kathryn Ebersole Rugg June 23, 1903 in Ottawa, Illinois. They had two children: Horace (Rusty) Rugg Palmer and Dorothy Louise Palmer.

On May 12, 1953 DeWitt H. Palmer took his own life at the home of his son Horace (Rusty) in Cincinnati, Ohio.

WIFE - Kathryn Ebersole RUGG-13

Kathryn Rugg, ninth and last child of George Henry Rugg and Mary Louise Crabb Ebersole, was born February 2, 1869 in Ottawa, Illinois.

According to her daughter Dorothy Louise Palmer Bundy, "Mother was a saint."

As a young woman, Kathryn was venturesome. It was unusual for a woman to do anything but marry. However, she took a business course and became the secretary to the president of the Deering Harvest Machine Co. in Omaha, Nebraska. When the company moved its offices to Indianapolis, Indiana, Kathryn moved with them. There she lived in a boarding house where she met her husband-to-be, DeWitt Hart Palmer. She was six years older than he.

On June 23, 1903, Kathryn married D.H. Palmer. With her marriage she began a life filled with moves and difficulties. Whatever she did, she did with grace and aplomb.

When D.H. Palmer worked for Massey-Harris (General Manager), they lived in Canada. The family was not accepted socially there for some time because the U.S. had not yet entered WW I. After the U.S. entry, things were better for the family. Massey-Harris manufactured war materiels.

Both Kathryn and her husband were very patriotic people. Because of that, they left Canada to return to the U.S. where they wanted to rear their children.

Kathryn was a very self-disciplined woman who was warm and loving. She had a wonderful sense of humor. Once two dogs ran between her legs, upending her. She laughed as heartily at herself as did Dorothy her daughter. Another time fire destroyed the family home and possessions (a candle on the Christmas tree started the blaze). Kathryn cried for a day, squared her shoulders and never mentioned their loss again.

Kathryn was an honorable person and she had a strong sense of right and wrong and what was "correct." She said to her daughter, "Dorothy, a lady is known by her gloves and her shoes. Her gloves must always be perfectly white and her shoes always shined."

After they gave up their home, DeWitt and Kathryn lived alternately for a year each with their son Rusty and his family or their daughter Dorothy and hers. Until she was 52, Kathryn was a practicing Presbyterian. However, she was drawn to the precepts of Christian Science and became one about 1920.

Kathryn E. Rugg died August 9, 1962, at the home of her son Rusty in Cincinnati, Ohio. She was interred beside her husband at Rice Cemetery in Elkhart, Indiana.

In appearance Kathryn was very attractive. She had exceptionally clear, white skin (due to a daily splashing of ice cold water, she told her daughter), and silver, white hair that had turned that color when she was in her thirties.

CHILD 1 - Horace "Rusty" Rugg PALMER-14

Ella L. Rugg was the eighth child born to George H. Rugg and Mary Louisa Ebersole. A second birth year for her may be 1869.

Ella was a bumbling, lovable person, high-principled and caring. She became a teacher and taught in the same country school for many years. When she retired, she was teaching members of the fourth generation to attend the school. At retirement, she sold all her property and went into the Presbyterian Home in Evanston, Illinois.

When she was a young woman, she was engaged to be married. However, in 1904 she had a hysterectomy. Feeling it would be indecent to marry and not give her husband children, she broke the engagement and remained single the rest of her life.

She had many endearing qualities. Even though she always carried an umbrella, she also always seemed to lose it. Once she signed out of the home in Evanston to spend Christmas with her niece Dorothy Palmer Bundy and her family. Ella was given specific instruction about where to sit in the train station when she arrived in Elkhart so that she could be picked up. When she arrived she walked two blocks from the station and waited. Naturally Hugh Bundy couldn't find her. Ella called the Bundy home, quite put out that no one had been at the spot (two blocks from the station) to meet her. At last the comedy of errors came to an end; she spent Christmas with the Bundys.

"Dorothy Dix" was the nickname by which Ella called Dorothy Palmer; she was very fond of Dorothy and her family.

Ella always dressed to the hilt for bed; however, when she rose in the morning, she always flung open the bedroom windows and dressed in the cold.

On her 90th birthday, a party in her honor was held at the Presbyterian Home where she lived. It seemed she was literally living for the party. Afterward she went up to her room, changed into her nightclothes and died while the nurse was getting her supper tray.

Also buried with Charles Bundy are Martha Bundy with the date 1882 inscribed on her stone and Walter Bundy (1878-1879). Were these also children of Charles and Mary Bundy?

George Bundy was a quiet, gentle man. He had great integrity and was very fond of children. He loved his family very much and seemed to be dominated by his wife and her family.

After he was married, the family moved to Chicago where George worked for the Chicago City Railway Co. as an engineer. However, his wife was not happy so far away from her family. They then moved to Syracuse, Indiana, where George worked for the Portland Cement Co. He also worked for them in their Penn. plant. Later, he joined the organization of the Auburn Automobile Co., Auburn, Indiana. He was a member of the production department.

In 1921 George and Ella moved to Elkhart, Indiana where he became partners with four other men in the ElCar Co. All the cars were handmade. The company could not compete with Ford, G.M., etc., who used the assembly line method to build cars. The other four partners sold their share of the business, but George felt a responsibility to his employees and the company stock holders. He lost a great deal when the company finally closed its doors in 1933 and he never really worked again.

George Bundy was a very handsome man whose thick hair was very curly. He was very tall for a man of his generation.

When it was decided by his family that he was no longer competent to drive an automobile, his license was revoked. He wept, standing in the doorway of his home as his ElCar limousine was driven away. He had come to have a real love affair with the automobile and the industry that had created it.

George died May 20, 1942, of appoplexy (according to his death certificate) in Elkhart, Indiana. He was buried May 22, 1942 in the cemetery in Waterloo, Indiana.

HUSBAND - Cyrus Milton/Melton PHILLIPS-706

According to his obituary, Cyrus Phillips lost his mother when he was seven years of age (about 1839). He lived for some time among "strangers" near Erie, Penn.

About 1849 he taught school near what is now Mishawaka, Indiana. In 1850, Cyrus Phillips was in Ohio. He met his wife in Ravenna, where they married. They lived first in Kent, Ohio, then in Salem Center, Indiana, finally settling in Waterloo.

Cyrus Phillips joined the Northern army 14 Oct 1864 as a volunteer substitute for a Frederick Stimatz of Jackson Twp, Elkhart Co. At the time he was 32 yrs 8 mos of age, was 5'10" tall, had grey eyes and auburn hair. His complexion was fair. He mustered in at Kendalville, Indiana as a private. He was discharged from service 19 June 1865 from McDougal Hospital in New York Harbor. Cyrus listed himself as being a mechanic by profession.

Cyrus Phillips studied law after the Civil War and was admitted to the DeKalb County Bar in 1873. He served as deputy prosecutor and was a valued member of his community. He brought youngsters home to "parent" when they were in trouble. He often helped those less fortunate than himself, with the support of his wife and family.

He was a member of the Masonic Lodge in Waterloo.

He died of "auto intoxication", whatever that is. It is listed as the cause of death on his death certificate from DeKalb County. On the back of Cyrus Phillips' death certificate his parents are listed as Ruben Phillips and Lydia Cole.

Alice Bell Phillips, dau. of Cyrus and Sarah, told this story about her father: Cyrus felt it was indecent for a woman to show her ankles. He chewed tobacco, and if ever his daughters revealed their ankles, he just let fly with tobacco juice.

CHILD 6 - Ella (Elerie) C. PHILLIPS/PHILIPS-9

Ella C./Elerie/Helen Phillips was born to Cyrus Milton/Melton Phillips and Sarah Elisabeth Welch 27 September 1868. She was the sixth of nine children born to the Phillips. There is some question as to whether she was born in Salem, Indiana or Elyria, Lorain County, Ohio.

She was reared in Auburn, Indiana, where her father was an attorney, judge and civic leader.

According to her daughter-in-law, Dorothy P. Bundy, she was a moody person, much influenced by her family. Mood swings seemed the norm for her. She used her moodiness to control her husband and her sons.

All her life Ella had her way, except when the family moved to Elkhart in 1921. So she "took to her bed" for seven years after the move.

Apparently Ella didn't care for her daughter-in-law Dorothy, whom her younger son married. Over the years, however, some acceptance was achieved.

A great part of that acceptance was due to the birth of Barbara Kathryn Bundy, daughter of Hugh Milton Bundy and Dorothy Louise Palmer. Ella had no use for girl babies; however, by the time Barbara was four months old, she had completely captured her grandmother's heart.

Hugh and Dorothy spent three days or evenings a week at the elder Bundy's home. This was difficult for the younger couple, but they continued their visits until Ella's death.

The Phillips family seemed to absorb their children's spouses into their family. Appearances were important to Ella; she dressed very well and was conceited.

Ella Phillips died at the family home (1019 E. Jackson Blvd) in Elkhart April 8, 1951 of a cerebral hemorrhage. She is buried in Waterloo, Indiana.

CHILD 8 - Alice Bell PHILLIPS-714

Alice Phillips never married and was a liberated career woman long before it became fashionable. She helped her nieces and nephews by encouraging them to read books, develop their minds. She even provided Phil Phillip's tuition during his first year at Purdue University. She spent eighteen years traveling the U.S. selling a large set of historical novels/encyclopedias, eventually as a crew supervisor. She called on the supt. of a school district, got his endorsement for the books and then a crew of men and women sold them house to house.

Alice Phillips made excellent money, nearly all of which she used to help family members over the years.

At one time Alice was engaged to a Mr. Lawson (he conducted the funeral service for Cyrus Phillips) but he died before they could be married. She left her engagement ring to Cathy Phillips, dau. of Phil and Fran Phillips.

Alice returned to the family home in Waterloo to care for her mother, Sarah, until her death at age 98. Sarah was blind by the time she died.

After Sarah Welch's death, Alice lived on in Waterloo, serving on the School Board and as town librarian until the State raised the eligibility requirements for librarians. She was about 75 years old at that time and did not want to return to school, so she retired. She moved to a Christian Church retirement home in Marion, where she died.

Howard Bundy contributed a lot toward Alice Phillip's financial support prior to her going to the church home; she had no Social Security and had only the house in Waterloo and enough money for her burial.

Alice Phillips was an outspoken woman who wanted to be a lawyer; she stood up for what she believed was right.

CHILD 9 - Clayton Melton PHILLIPS-715

Clayton Phillips suffered a stroke; his second wife Bertha Ettinger divorced him then. He went to Waterloo where his sister Alice cared for him until his death.

Clayton Phillips lost his first wife Lucy Garber when their son Phil was just seven years old. Lida and Will Hall, sister and brother-in-law of Clayton, returned to So. Bend from their Texas retirement to make a home for Clayton and Phil, until Phil went away to college. It was about then that Clayton married Bertha Ettinger, who left him after his stroke.

Clayton Phillips was an electrical supervisor at the Studebaker Corp. in South Bend, Indiana.

Clayton Phillips and Lucy Garber had two children: Zelma May and Philip A.

HUSBAND - DeWitt PALMER-80

DeWitt Palmer, son of Guy Carlton Palmer and his second wife Mary Utter, was born October 31, 1846, in New Hartford, New York. He married Sarah Marie/Maria Hart 22 October 1873, at her father's home in New Hartford.

He is remembered as a quiet man, dominated by his wife. He was quite handsome and wore a Van Dyke beard which he kept scrupulously groomed. In Hubbardsville (a tiny community near New Hartford), he owned a feedmill.

It was from him that Dorothy Louise Palmer learned as a child not to fear thunderstorms. He taught her how to tell how far away a storm was by counting the number of seconds that elapsed between a bolt of lightning and its accompanying thunder. By explaining things logically, he took away her irrational fears.

Hubbardsville was two blocks long and had dirt streets. There were two general stores there and Palmer's feedmill on a pond. DeWitt Palmer had a team of horses and at least one hired hand. One day while she was riding one of the work horses in the company of the hired man, Dorothy slid off over its head into the pond when it bent to drink. She remembers clearly the mirth her accident brought to everyone.

For three months one year, Dorothy went with her mother and brother to stay with her grandparents. Her father, DeWitt Hart Palmer, son of DeWitt and Sarah, was establishing himself in a new position. While she was there she attended a one-room school. She also remembers that the Palmer home was one that changed with the seasons. During the summer, it was carpeted with mats made of straw. In winter regular carpeting was laid down.

Sundays there were very hard on young children. The family attended church, came home, ate dinner and read from the Bible. Little ones were hard pressed to sit still.

Sources: Palmer family Bible and other records in possession of Robert Palmer of Troy, Alabama. Palmer family records in possession of Slade Palmer of Waverly, New York.

WIFE - Sarah Marie/Maria HART-113

According to her granddaughter Dorothy Louise Palmer Bundy, Sarah Hart Palmer was a vain woman. She felt she had sacrificed her youth to child bearing and rearing. Her oldest child DeWitt Hart Palmer became almost a nursemaid for his brothers and sister, as a result of his mother's resentment toward her children. She ruled the family and was overbearing.

Physically she was an attractive woman who was small and who had dark hair. Later in her life she wore glasses.

Sarah and her husband were strict Methodists. After dinner each evening, they read the Bible for an hour. This was very hard on youngsters who had trouble sitting still. Dorothy remembers having to behave during the readings, something she and her older brother found hard to do.

Once when her sons came home for a visit, they decided to play poker. Sarah was horrified at their decision. They played their game, but their mother pulled all the shades in the house to hide their transgression from the neighbors.

After her daughter Julia Palmer Niles died, Sarah Hart Palmer took <sup>Julia's</sup> her two sons Walter and Palmer to rear them.

CHILD 1 - DeWitt Hart PALMER-12

DeWitt Hart Palmer, first child of DeWitt Palmer and Sarah Marie/Maria Hart, was born in New Hartford, New York Sep. 7, 1874. An attractive man with dark hair, he wore a moustache and glasses most of his adult life. As a young man, he wanted to be a doctor, but his parents would not allow it. He loved music and had a good singing voice; indeed, he was an accomplished pianist, having taught himself to play.

He was an introspective person who was undemonstrative with everyone but his daughter Dorothy Louise. He found it difficult to make small talk and was slow and deliberate in his speech.

Dorothy, his daughter, feels he was a near-genius. According to her he "lived in an unbalanced world of absolutes." Like many brilliant people he was both egotistical and insecure. As a man in business, he could take neither criticism nor friction. Rather than submit to something he felt was not right, he'd leave a job. Consequently, he held a new position every two years or so. This job-hopping was very hard on his family; they moved often to many different sections of the U.S. and Canada. One year they might have an overabundance of money; the next they would find themselves in difficult straits.

DeWitt H. Palmer loved his family, but he seemed able to show his love only to his daughter. Apparently his wife, Kathryn Ebersole Rugg, did not understand him, even though she seemed to love him, and he, her. Sometimes he even appeared mean-spirited because he was displeased with himself for not being able to give his wife what he felt she should have.

D.H. Palmer was known by the carnation he wore in his button-hole every day that he went to his office wherever that might be.

DeWitt H. Palmer married Kathryn Ebersole Rugg June 23, 1903 in Ottawa, Illinois. They had two children: Horace (Rusty) Rugg Palmer and Dorothy Louise Palmer.

On May 12, 1953 DeWitt H. Palmer took his own life at the home of his son Sarah (Rusty) in Cincinnati, Ohio.

According to Stacy Jackson's account of Cameron area families published about 1931, Nathaniel Bundy settled in Cameron about 1827 having come from Pittsfield, Otsego County, New York.

The birth positions of Nathaniel and Susan's last three children are uncertain.

At the time of Nathaniel Bundy's death 9 Apr 1857, his wife Elizabeth and sons John, George and Charles were of Cameron. Nathaniel's daughter Sally Bundy and her husband Nathaniel Hastings resided in Chatham, Tioga county, Pennsylvania. His daughter Eliza Bundy and her husband Eli Griffin lived in Auburn, Indiana. Nathaniel's grand children by his deceased daughter Elizabeth Topping and her husband Perry Topping, Nathaniel and William, were living in Bath, New York.

John N. Bundy married his step sister Nancy Cameron, daughter of Nathaniel Bundy's second wife, Mary Elizabeth Cameron. How that squares with the reported fact that Mary Elizabeth Cameron was the daughter of George D. Cameron, I'm not sure. Anyway, it is relatively unimportant as it does not affect Dick's direct line. Charles Bundy and his wife Mary were buried in Ginder Cemetery (CR40 & CR59). It was previously known as Mt. Pleasant Cemetery. DHB has photos of Bundy graves there, altho no marker was found for Mary L. Bundy, Charles' wife.

Mary L./Louise/Eliza Sickles has another birthdate, obtained from the back of her death certificate: 4 July 1846 in Pennsylvania. Her father is listed as William Sickles.

Also buried with Charles Bundy are Martha Bundy with the date 1882 inscribed on her stone and Walter Bundy (1878-1879). Were these also children of Charles and Mary Bundy?

Source: 1830 U.S. Census (M33 [1830]-roll 74).

WIFE - Lydia COLE-724

CHILD 1 - Cyrus Milton/Melton PHILLIPS-706

According to his obituary, Cyrus Phillips lost his mother when he was seven years of age (about 1839). He lived for some time among "strangers" near Erie, Penn.

About 1849 he taught school near what is now Mishawaka, Indiana. In 1850, Cyrus Phillips was in Ohio. He met his wife in Ravenna, where they married. They lived first in Kent, Ohio, then in Salem Center, Indiana, finally settling in Waterloo.

Cyrus Phillips joined the Northern army 14 Oct 1864 as a volunteer substitute for a Frederick Stimatz of Jackson Twp, Elkhart Co. At the time he was 32 yrs 8 mos of age, was 5'10" tall, had grey eyes and auburn hair. His complexion was fair. He mustered in at Kendalville, Indiana as a private. He was discharged from service 19 June 1865 from McDougal Hospital in New York Harbor. Cyrus listed himself as being a mechanic by profession.

Cyrus Phillips studied law after the Civil War and was admitted to the DeKalb County Bar in 1873. He served as deputy prosecutor and was a valued member of his community. He brought youngsters home to "parent" when they were in trouble. He often helped those less fortunate than himself, with the support of his wife and family.

He was a member of the Masonic Lodge in Waterloo.

He died of "auto intoxication", whatever that is. It is listed as the cause of death on his death certificate from DeKalb County. On the back of Cyrus Phillips' death certificate his parents are listed as Ruben Phillips and Lydia Cole.

Alice Bell Phillips, dau. of Cyrus and Sarah, told this story about her father: Cyrus felt it was indecent for a woman to show her ankles. He chewed tobacco, and if ever his daughters revealed their ankles, he just let fly with tobacco juice.

CHILD 3 - DeWitt PALMER-80

DeWitt Palmer, son of Guy Carlton Palmer and his second wife Mary Utter, was born October 31, 1846, in New Hartford, New York. He married Sarah Marie/Maria Hart 22 October 1873, at her father's home in New Hartford.

He is remembered as a quiet man, dominated by his wife. He was quite handsome and wore a Van Dyke beard which he kept scrupulously groomed. In Hubbardsville (a tiny community near New Hartford), he owned a feedmill.

It was from him that Dorothy Louise Palmer learned as a child not to fear thunderstorms. He taught her how to tell how far away a storm was by counting the number of seconds that elapsed between a bolt of lightning and its accompanying thunder. By explaining things logically, he took away her irrational fears.

Hubbardsville was two blocks long and had dirt streets. There were two general stores there and Palmer's feedmill on a pond. DeWitt Palmer had a team of horses and at least one hired hand. One day while she was riding one of the work horses in the company of the hired man, Dorothy slid off over its head into the pond when it bent to drink. She remembers clearly the mirth her accident brought to everyone.

For three months one year, Dorothy went with her mother and brother to stay with her grandparents. Her father, DeWitt Hart Palmer, son of DeWitt and Sarah was establishing himself in a new position. While she was there she attended a one-room school. She also remembers that the Palmer home was one that changed with the seasons. During the summer, it was carpeted with mats made of straw. In winter regular carpeting was laid down.

Sundays there were very hard on young children. The family attended church, came home, ate dinner and read from the Bible. Little ones were hard pressed to sit still.

CHILD 1 - Sarah Marie/Maria HART-113

According to her granddaughter Dorothy Louise Palmer Bundy, Sarah Hart Palmer was a vain woman. She felt she had sacrificed her youth to child bearing and rearing. Her oldest child DeWitt Hart Palmer became almost a nursemaid for his brothers and sister, as a result of his mother's resentment toward her children. She ruled the family and was overbearing.

Physically she was an attractive woman who was small and who had dark hair. Later in her life she wore glasses.

Sarah and her husband were strict Methodists. After dinner each evening, they read the Bible for an hour. This was very hard on youngsters who had trouble sitting still. Dorothy remembers having to behave during the readings, something she and her older brother found hard to do.

Once when her sons came home for a visit, they decided to play poker. Sarah was horrified at their decision. They played their game, but their mother pulled all the shades in the house to hide their transgression from the neighbors.

After her daughter Julia Palmer Niles died, Sarah Hart Palmer took <sup>Julia's</sup> her two sons Walter and Palmer to rear them.
